SNOW-SLIDES IN UTAH-HOW THE AVA-

LANCHES OCCUR-PERILS OF THE MINERS .-- A miner in Utah writes to an eastern paper, under date of January 15th, and gives an interesting account of a serious accident that happened a short time before to one of the mining camps, occasioned by a heavy snowslide. He says: "In one of our mining camps, known as Big Cottonwood,' the mountain peaks loom up to the height of from 11,000 to 12,-000 feet, and during the winter the snowstorms rage incessantly. Consequently the eamp is subjected to the most terrific snow-slides. One of those storms was of the most fearful character-not a little fall of snow of six or eight with the wind howling and dritting the snow there where the snow is probably over forty feet deep. These avalanches are caused by mountain and forming a large drift just over acres, and ten to forty feet thick, sweeps with the rapidity of lightning down into the canons, carrying everything before it. No soft snow, but pack and jammed together so solid that the moment the mass stops heavily-loaded ore-teams can be driven anywhere on top of it, the horses' shoes only making an impression. One of these slides swept over a mine called the Anna last Tuesday, killing four men. The mine was working six men on eight-hour shifts, which necessarily kept two men at work while four were either sleeping or resting. Their cabin, or boarding-house, immediately in front of the tunnel they were running, was built very strong, and considered safe from slides. At 12 o'clock at night the shafts were and the other two sitting up at the fire. One had commenced writing a letter, and the The two men had just reached the face, (or over, leaving it fi'led with about five feet of on getting out found nothing in sight. The house was swept away completely. They raised an alarm as soon as possible, and getting word up to the mine called the Prince of Wales, which was running about one hundred bands, they all turned out and commenced digging for the house, which was not found until late the next morning. It two thousand feet, with about thirty feet of were found just as the other two had left the roof, and had enveloped them so sudnot bruised in any way, but had been suffocated. The man sat there at the table in the act of writing, the inkstand not even having tipped over, but the man smoking had probably heard it coming one second before he was struck, as his pipe lay between his feet.

Missed Their Game .-- How some railroad gamblers came to grief is told by the Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise: These men, it says, are usually excellent lay with the blankets over them as smoothly as if just spread. The men who helped dig them out, and who brought the bodies into the city, said that by the looks of the men they couldn't have awakened at all. The slides have started in early this year. There have been seven men killed within the last two weeks and a number of animals; but the camp for snow-slides couple of winters ago, an avalanche came judges of character, and are seldom mistaken in their man. Sometimes, however, their judgment is at fault, and the apparent fly they entice into their parlors proves to be a tarantula. The other day at Battle Mountain they allured a German from the East, who exhibited a large roll of greenbacks on the platform, into the spider's nest. The "drunken man" was on a big spree when the expected victim entered, and was losing money on every bet. The German declined to bet, and to get him in the notion one of the cappers gave him a $20 piece on which to try his luck. He placed it on a card and won. Pocketing the $40 be refused to bet again, and walked out of the house followed by the cappers, who insisted on getting the money back. The German drew a large sized revolver from his pocket, and assuming a defiant attitude, said: "You speak to me I put you so full of holes you don't know what you am. I am old Californian, and know all about your tricks. You take me for an emigrant, you make fools mit yourselves." The three-carders discovered that they had caught a tartar as they saw their would-be victim board the train, as the conductor shouted "all aboard" and left them lamenting.

"The Recent Origin of Man," by James C. Southall, Esq., will soon be issued, as the last sheets are now going through the press. This is a work of about 600 pages, and to it Mr. Southall has laboriously devoted several years of his life. That it must be an able workall who know its author must be assured, and those who have been so fortunate as to see the advance sheets declare that it is at least the ablest argument yet presented in favor of the orthodox side of the questions involved, if it be not a complete refutation of Darwin, Spencer, Lubbock, and Huxley, on the main issue. The work will be welcomed by the large class of intelligent readers interested in the matters discussed .- Mela, in Petersburg Appeal.

DEATH OF POLICEMAN KENDALL O'DWYER. Mr. Kendall O'Dwyer, a member of the police force from the Second district, died suddenly at his residence yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. Mr. O'Dwyer was thirty-four years of age, and a son of the late Denis Keating O'Dwyer. He served in the Confederate army with faithfulness and bravery during the whole of the war, and after the surrender (he did not avail himself of it), in company with a number of his messmates. endeavored to reach General Johnston's army in the West; but deserters and Federal soldiers, bushwhacking in the Iron Mountains of Southwest Virginia, drove back the party, and they finally surrendered. Mr. O'Dwyer came to Richmond and went to work. Subsequently he received an appointment on the police force, and, whether as a detective or patrolman, served the city so faithfully that up to the bour of his death no complaint had ever been made of him either by his officers or any citizen.

Mr. O'Dwyer was a native of Tipperary Ireland. He will be buried from St. Peter's cathedral at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The remains will be escorted to their last restingplace by a detail of twenty-five policemen from the three districts, under command of Captain John Disney.

A HARASSED HETRESS-ROMANCE IN REAL Life.—Yesterday morning United States Commissioner M. F. LOOKING FOR THE FIRE .-- Between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon the fire-alarm gongs in the police-stations and enginehouses commenced striking in the most incoherent manner. The Chief Engineer de-clared (although the sixteen-inch gong at the new station on Tenth street struck about tifty times) that he had no idea where to go to look for the fire. The Chief, however drove to the Broad-street engine-house, where the firemen were all ready to move from there to Superintendent Paynter's office, where it was ascertained that some repairs were being made to the telegraph-wire at the corner of Third and Marshall streets. and it was thought that the striking may have been due to that cause.
